I took part in an Erasmus+ mobility program at Alberta College as an administrative staff member. I heard about this opportunity from my university, which shared information and encouraged us to apply. I wanted to join because it was a good chance to gain international experience and see how administrative work is done in another institution.

My Erasmus+ experience was very good and useful. The program was well organized, and the host college was very friendly and welcoming.

During the mobility, I mainly got familiar with the work of the financial department at Alberta College. I learned how their financial processes are organized and how they manage daily administrative and financial tasks. I also had the opportunity to observe their working methods and compare them with our own practices.

I liked Alberta College a lot. The environment was professional, friendly, and open. The staff were kind and willing to share information about their work.

The main benefits of this mobility were gaining insight into a different financial system, improving my understanding of administrative processes, and seeing new approaches to work organization. It also helped me broaden my professional perspective.

My advice for future Erasmus+ participants is to be active, observe carefully, and ask questions. Even if you are not doing the same tasks as in your home institution, you can still learn a lot from observing and exchanging experience.

In conclusion, this Erasmus+ mobility was a very positive experience for me, and I am thankful for this opportunity.
